

Work it Out... Classroom Design and Set Up... and All The Things

How to get the most out of this worksheet...

- Take time to watch the corresponding video first. Grab a journal or open a fresh online document and start working these questions out. These worksheets are not editable by design-- rather, they give you a little room for brainstorming before you take to really working out your vision and dreams for your family.
- Really take time to think through the questions here and thoughtfully answer each one. The questions are here to help you think through things that you may not have taken the time to truly consider before, and you'll be amazed at how much clarity you'll get just by stopping to write down what's in your heart for your children

"All the world's your classroom" when you're homeschooling with those in-between moments in mind. So don't lose sight of that when you're approaching setting your school space. You'll still need to give your children a static place to work, but that area of your home where you will designate homeschool will happen is only a small part of the picture— the boundaries of your school will literally become limitless!

Before you start writing, let's review some of the important points from this lesson:

- There is no checklist for setting up your classroom, so look at the space God has given you and get creative!! There are lots of fun ideas to be found on the internet, but always tie to this anchor to help you homeschool successfully—> Be content with what you have and where you are.
- Satan would love to use the pretty staged pictures of other's homeschool rooms to make you discontent and ungrateful... and that will make it really hard to focus on your mission each day, for you'll be struggling to win the battle in your own mind. God has you right where He wants you right now— and He can take the little that you feel like you have to offer and make much of it— for His glory! Trust Him with your classroom setup just as you do with each and every day!

How are you going to set up your homeschool space? If you have a dedicated space available to you, how will you decorate it? What are your children's ideas about their space. Again, the more ways you can get them involved in the entirety of the mission, the better-- and setting up your homeschool space is part of the fun stuff! Dream together, shop together, brainstorm together- this should be fun!

Do you struggle with discontentment or envy? One way to counteract that is to focus on what you're grateful for instead of on what you want. Start looking at what you have through different eyes-- make a point to list the things you're grateful for each day. I often ask David at the end of the night what his favorite thing about the day was... it's a great way to build that habit of being grateful

You don't need nearly as much stuff as you may think you do. Make a list of what you truly need at this point in your homeschool journey to serve as a supply list. Remember, you also have to come up with ways to store all the stuff you have, so keep that in mind as you're making your list.

We'd love to see your homeschool space! Share some pictures with us on Instagram, tag us and use #TTDHomeschoolSpace, so we can share the ideas you come up with!!
